

Tad x Jimmy

30–60 min conversation prep — one3Seven

Extract knowledge. Do not pitch.

SAY THIS IN THE FIRST 60 SECONDS

"Victoria and I built a platform called one3Seven. Workers upload records and tell their story. The platform organizes everything into a firm review experience. We're not pitching today — we want your honest reaction from someone who knows how firms actually think."

THE ONE QUESTION THAT MATTERS MOST

"If you had this product tomorrow, how would you get the first 10 law firms using it?"

WHAT WE'RE MISSING

"What's the first thing you think we're not seeing?"

Show the demo first. Then ask. Highest-value question in the conversation.

HOW FIRMS THINK

"If you were still talking to attorneys every day — what makes them lean in? What makes them tune out?"

This gets to positioning. His answer should reshape how Tad and Victoria describe the product.

WHO BUYS

"Who inside the firm would feel this pain most — and want to solve it first?"

Don't assume Managing Partner. Could be Intake Director, Ops Manager, Legal Admin, Intake Team Lead. Who actually owns this problem?

THEIR LANGUAGE

"If you had to explain one3Seven to a lawyer in one sentence, what would you say?"

His answer is probably better than ours. Write it down exactly. This may become the product tagline.

THE ROADBLOCKS

"What would stop a firm from using this?"

Trust / liability / workflow change / cost / adoption / staff resistance. Whatever he says becomes the objection-handling roadmap.

THE NEXT DOOR

"Who are 3 people you think would give us honest feedback?"

Not "can you help us." Ask for names. Warm introductions are how startups move. This is the most important closing question.

DO NOT TALK ABOUT:

AI models · Supabase architecture · extraction pipelines · prompts · development timeline · anything about how the watch was built.

HOW TO USE WHAT HE SAYS:

- Q4 one-sentence answer !' Update product copy, outreach PDF, and the first line of every demo
- Q3 who feels pain first !' Update ICP — who Tad calls first, who Victoria demos to first
- Q5 what stops them !' Becomes objection-handling section in the sales bible
- Q6 who next (3 names) !' Tad's next 3 outreach targets, warm intro if Jimmy offers
- The one question answer !' Rewrite the go-to-market plan if his answer differs from current plan
