

"Before your attorney picks up the phone, one3Seven has already organized the worker's documents, built the timeline, and flagged what's missing."

THE PROBLEM EVERY EMPLOYMENT FIRM ALREADY FEELS

- Intake overload Workers submit documents in every format. Someone has to sort through them before the attorney can even decide if the case is worth reviewing.
- $350/hr attorney time wasted 3 hours organizing records before a consultation = $1,050 in unbillable attorney time. Every intake. Every time.
- Document chaos Pay stubs, HR emails, warning letters, texts, schedules — scattered, unlabeled, out of order, across email threads and USB drives.
- Cases slipping through High intake volume + limited review time = good cases declined because there was no time to evaluate them properly.

WHAT ONE3SEVEN DOES — IN PLAIN ENGLISH

A worker describes their situation and uploads their documents directly. one3Seven reads everything, builds a clean chronological timeline, categorizes the records, and flags anything that needs clarification. The attorney opens a single organized packet — not a pile of files.

The math every managing partner understands:

3 hours of attorney intake time × $350/hr = $1,050 in cost per intake

one3Seven Practice plan: $499/month — unlimited intakes. ROI on the first case.

WHAT ONE3SEVEN IS NOT — ANSWER THESE OBJECTIONS EARLY

- Not a case management system It does not replace Clio, MyCase, or any practice management software. It organizes intake before a case is opened.
- Not legal advice software It never evaluates the case. It never tells the worker what to do. It organizes — the attorney decides.
- Not an AI that could be wrong about the law It reads documents and builds timelines. No legal conclusions. No risk of unauthorized practice.
- Not a replacement for staff It removes the sorting and organizing work. Staff can focus on the calls and relationships, not the document chaos.

WHO BUYS AT A LAW FIRM — REACH THE RIGHT PERSON

Managing Partner Feels: Revenue efficiency, firm growth, billable hour pressure	"Your attorneys stop doing intake sorting and start billing."
Practice Manager / Ops Director Feels: Workflow burden, staff cost, intake volume	"This replaces $3–5k/month of intake coordinator work."
Intake Director Feels: Document chaos, screening decisions, volume	"Every intake arrives organized. You review, you decide."
Associate Attorney Feels: Too much non-billable intake work	Not the buyer — but a strong internal champion if they love it.

IDEAL CUSTOMER PROFILE — WHO TO TARGET FIRST

GOOD FIT

- Employment plaintiff law firm (worker-side only — not employer defense)
- 1 to 15 attorneys
- High intake volume — 20 or more new inquiries per month
- California, New York, Illinois, Texas — highest employment litigation volume
- Currently using email, spreadsheets, or nothing to organize intakes

NOT A FIT (YET)

- Employer-side defense firms
- Criminal, family, or immigration law
- Large firms with a dedicated intake operations team already built

DISCOVERY QUESTIONS — ASK BEFORE YOU PITCH

Never pitch until you know the pain. Ask these in order:

- "How does a new worker intake reach your firm today?"
Maps their current process — establishes baseline.
- "Who touches it before an attorney reviews it?"
Finds the bottleneck and the people involved.
- "What's the biggest friction point in your intake right now?"
Lets them name the pain themselves.
- "Have you ever passed on a case you later wished you hadn't — because you didn't have time to properly review it?"
This opens the real conversation. Most will say yes.

OBJECTION HANDLING

"We already have a process"	"That's great — most firms do. The question is how much attorney time it takes. Can I show you what ours looks like?"
"Does it integrate with Clio?"	"Not yet — but the PDF export drops cleanly into any system. Integration is on the roadmap."
"What if the AI gets it wrong?"	"It organizes — it never decides. Your attorney reviews everything. It's a better-organized pile, not a recommendation."
"We're not ready to pay yet"	"That's exactly why we have a 60-day free pilot. No credit card. You use it on real intakes and decide after."

TAD'S ROLE RIGHT NOW — SDR (SALES DEVELOPMENT REP)

Victoria closes. Tad opens. Your job is to find the right firms, reach the right person, and book a 20-minute demo call. That's it. Don't pitch the product — pitch the conversation.

- Find target firms Employment plaintiff firms, 1–15 attorneys, CA/NY/IL/TX. Use Google, Avvo, state bar directories, LinkedIn.
- Find the right contact Managing Partner or Operations Director — not associates. LinkedIn is your best tool.
- Warm outreach first Bar association contacts, legal ops groups, referrals from anyone you know. Warm beats cold every time.
- The ask is small "I built something that organizes worker intakes before the first call. Can I show you 20 minutes?" That's the whole pitch.
- Follow up Law firms move slowly. One follow-up is not aggressive — it is expected. Three touchpoints before moving on.
- Book the demo Hand off to Victoria. Your job ends at the meeting being on the calendar.

OUTREACH TEMPLATES

LinkedIn — First Message

Hi [Name] — I work with a legal tech startup called one3Seven. We built a tool that organizes worker intake documents before the first attorney call — timeline, records, flagged gaps — all done before anyone picks up the phone.

I thought it might be worth 20 minutes given what employment firms typically deal with on intake. Would you be open to a quick look?

Email — Subject: Intake organization for employment firms

[Name],

I built a tool for employment plaintiff firms that organizes worker intake documents before the first attorney call.

Worker uploads documents. AI builds the timeline, categorizes records, flags gaps. Attorney opens one clean packet.

We're in beta with a 60-day free pilot — no credit card, full access. If intake organization is a real friction point for your firm, I'd love to show you a 20-minute demo.
